Computer Account Fees, Rules, and Policies
(This is side 2. Please see other side for application form.)

The following are the department's rules regarding usage and fees for computer accounts.

- "No one shall be expected to pay computer fees from their own pocket. For faculty without a source of support and for graduate students, the fees below will be considered to be part of the department's contribution towards running the computer facilities. Note that these fees are subject to change." The information below is for the rates as of July 1, 2006. See http://www.math.toronto.edu/admin/fees.html for more information.

Faculty:
   $1000/year + printing at $0.10/page
   Can arrange accounts for visitors and postdocs at $250/year + printing at $0.10/page

Graduate students with advisor:
   Yearly account fee ($50) covered by department
   Printing (if approved by advisor) charged to advisor at $0.10/page

Graduate students without advisor:
   Yearly account fee ($50) covered by department
   Printing (within reason) covered by department

- "If abnormally large use of a resource (e.g., disk space) by one user is creating difficulties for other users, the situation will be discussed with those concerned. In particular, excessive printing from accounts paid for by the department will not be tolerated."

- Use of computer accounts is also subject to compliance with the department's "Ac- ceptable Usage Policies" (which currently includes the University's "Appropriate Use of Information Technology" policies) which can be found at http://www.math.toronto.edu/aup/

as well as with the reasonable dictates of netiquette. Copies of these documents are available in BA6290 for perusal before this application is submitted.

- Notwithstanding the above policies, you are specifically prohibited from sharing your password with others, using an account that is not registered to you, and launching any kind of attack on other users or machines. Any suspected activity prohibited by these documents is grounds for immediate termination or suspension ("locking") of the offending account.

- Termination means that the account and all related files, including but not limited to email, data, and webfiles may be deleted from our systems at any time and will not be recoverable.

I agree to these terms, and will abide by the rules and policies.
